“ I really enjoyed working with Danny during his time as the IT guru at ASU! He was a great help on the projects between ASU and Northark, very enthusiastic, very funny, and we always ended up talking about flying. My deepest condolences to Danny's family.

“ No matter when, where or how flying is brought to my attention. I always go right back to the one and only time you took me flying. You were so gentle at first but quickly realized that I was okay for you to play a little. The things you made that plane do effortlessly were amazing. We laughed and talked; we were all that was happening in the world at the moment. Being born on George Washington's birthday gave us the day of school back then. So of course I had to wait till school was back in to brag about you being born on my 9th birthday. Fred the bus driver was the first person I told and he let me sit up in the window next to the steering wheel. At every stop I would tell them through the window and entering the bus about Little Danny being born on my birthday. I was shy; so it took everyone by surprise. Once we arrived at school. Fred had everyone sing Happy Birthday to Little Danny and Pennie. You are part of me Danny and one day we will fly again; with the wings from God. Thank you Danny and Susan for bringing such a special person into the world. I am praying for Gods peace for you as he carries you through the days ahead. May your family hold each other close now and forever. All my love Pennie

“ Danny, I think the world of you and will miss you greatly. I enjoyed our hours of talks, jokes, stories and phone calls. You were one of the few that helped me keep my sanity while returning to grad school. I particularly loved your mischievous streak that would join me in debating alternating sides of an academic debate just to keep the class off guard and fun. You were kind, smart, fun and you knew just how to take me when I was frustrated and aggravated and make me laugh. Thanks for being one of my few real friends. My prayers are with his family, particularly with his son (who I know for a fact he loves very, very much). I am proud to have been a friend of Danny!

“ Danny was an excellent pilot, I did so enjoy flying with him. He was so smart in so many fields, he even fixed our furnace at the office. Helped me with getting the correct office equipment that would last the longest. He will be missed by so many.

“ Danny was the best friend a guy could have. He did more nice things for me than anyone on this planet. I will forever be in his debt. He was super smart, super talented, and just a jack of all trades. He was an awesome teacher who made learning exciting and fun. He always had a grin on his face and was just full of stories and so darn funny. There is a huge hole in my heart now and a void that will never be filled because he was one of a kind. I will always cherish my friendship with Danny. I miss you buddy!
