“ We had a band trip together. March 13. We had went to a restaurant. Us two sat it a big seat, but he sat right next to me. We slept in the same hotel room too. I told him, "Bye Jeramie! See you at school!" He was a loving boy. He had a kind soul and didn't deserve to go so soon, especially the way he did.

“ Jeramie will always be remembered for the sweet, kind, caring young man he was. He became friends with my daughter, Haili probably 5 or 6 years ago. He loved when she would come to her aunt and uncle's house next door to his grandpa's so he could play outside with her collecting their gems. You are a gem, Jeramie and we'll always keep you in our hearts! 💔

“ Jeramie was a good friend of mine. I remember the first summer we met. He was living with his grandpa at the time and he would always come over to see if I was at my uncle's. We used to go "rock hunting" and had a plan to set up a shop for our finds. Our rock hunting consisted of digging, sorting by color, size and how sparkly, washing rocks up, wandering through the woods and breaking rocks apart with anything we could use. He had this one with chocolate quartz I do believe.. I was mesmerized by its beauty. One day he brought it and a hammer over and told me he was going to split it so I could have a half. He asked me to keep it forever because it represented our friendship and he wanted me to have a piece of him because he was going back to Alabama for the school year. After we halved it we held it back together and he told me he would be back next summer and he would bring his half with him. I am looking at it as I type this. I will always have it and will never forget where it came from. We didn't spend as much time together that next summer but we still did have some little adventures and enjoyed talking to each other about our crushes and plans we had for when we were older. Then I moved...I talked to Jeramie last year..we didn't get to hang out because of me being older and we're in different grades. I will always remember Jeramie as this bright, charming and wonderful boy. He didn't deserve to be treated the way he was.

“ Jeramie was in my history class at school this year and I’ve had him before too. He was such a happy and fun-loving kid. He showed me so many different card tricks and told me a new joke before we left school each day. I am thankful and honored to be his teacher. He will be greatly missed! ”
